Class Descriptions

All classes are 4 hours unless otherwise specified.

Attending an Oregon OSHA class helps you gain important knowledge and skills. The certificate should not be considered formal Oregon OSHA certification of professional competencies or qualifications.

Accident Investigation

You will learn about why investigations are important; and the process for conducting an accident investigation. This how-to class builds on the basic introduction in class Safety Meetings and Committees.

Excavation Safety

You will learn about: the role of the "competent person"; planning considerations; specific hazards resulting from excavation work; requirements for protective systems; and Oregon OSHA's soil-classification methods.

Fall Protection

This class will discuss the Oregon OSHA rules for fall protection use in the construction industry and will provide specific tools to build a pro-active safety program. Falls are consistently one of the top ten injuries in Oregon and cost employers millions of dollars each year. The goal of the class is to increase personal knowledge about how to prevent falls.

Forklift Safety

You will learn about the OSHA rules for Powered Industrial Trucks and developing a forklift training program. This class does not offer forklift operator certification (cards).

Hazard Identification and Control

You will learn about the types of workplace hazards; hazard correction; developing an inspection checklist for the walk-around inspection; and writing an effective safety inspection report. This class builds on the introduction in class Safety Meetings and Committees.

Lockout/Tagout

You will learn about the purpose and scope of the lockout/tagout standard; lockout and tagout procedures; training criteria; and periodic inspection criteria.

Machine Safeguarding

You will learn about Oregon OSHA machine guarding requirements; hazardous motions and actions; guards and devices; and training guidelines.

Safety Meetings and Committees

This introductory class discusses the role and purpose for the safety meeting and/or committee; employer and employee responsibilities; and safety committee training requirements.
